13 MS. SINGER: I feel like I'm giving a book
14 report. I'm not going to stand up here and talk 15 about impacts or tradeoffs or numbers or 16 percentages because I'm just mad, I'm upset, I'm 17 hurt, I'm angry. I've been here on planet Earth 18 for 28 years, and in the 28 short years that I've 19 spent here as a human being, I've learned how to 20 respect her. One mind, that's all I have. I find 21 it unacceptable that entities like governments and 22 corporations, which sometimes are really one and 23 the same, that have been here for much longer than 24 I, powered by more minds, have not been able to 25 muster an ounce of respect for this planet and the

1

1 life which it sustains. Maybe I've learned respect
2 for our environment because it's all I have. I
3 definitely don't have any money. I have my family, 4 I have my friends, my dog, the trees, the 5 mountains. And all of this is being jeopardized
6 for the love of money and lack of respect for 7 life.

8 I don't expect that the DOE understands the 9 way in which I appreciate life, but I know that 10 you have the capacity to understand it. You might 11 1 not know it, but it's there. I don't want Yucca 12 2 Mountain raped. I don't want nuclear energy at 13 all. I don't want nuclear weapons. And I don't 14 want life, human or otherwise, to suffer at the 15 hands of lies and greed and disrespect. Thank 16 you.

17 MS. SWEENEY: Thank you.

18 MR. LAWSON: Our next speaker is Bob
19 Fulkerson, and he'll be followed by -- I think I
20 have his name correct -- Steve Goldwyn and Kay
21 Kuck.
